

Construction Meerwijk Haarlem

date 03.10.2008

Along the Bernadottelaan in Haarlem 28 urban dwellings are being constructed. The highest point has been reached and the contours of the concept are forming. Out of the five different types of houses, one has been designed by Micha de Haas. Together with the other designers the total image of the plan has been collectively shaped, to make sure the project will manifest itself as a unity, during times in which diversity in appearance is omnipresent. Continuous height, common material use and collectively developed details make the image of the street, which has been carefully composed of the five very individual designs, into a coherent ensemble.
